Excerpt: . /- he is told rarely imparts -ijuiedge. It is the things which; find out for ourselves which are worth knowing; suggestions are generally more helpful than precepts. The groundwork of some of the following pers has appeared in article form in the, * uc News. I have been fortunate in securing the help of Mr. Il it on, the most accomplished of all golfers. His contribution did not reach me until the rest of this book had been prepared, and for this reason we may seem to have gone in some measure over the same ground. I have not thought it necessary, however, to make any alteration either in his work or in my own, deeming it better to allow a twofold version to appear and so permit? the reader to obtain a double view of the questions discussed.
